

WE ARE STILL HERE FOR YOU

At OFS the safety and health of our workforce and that of our customers are a number one priority. We are currently not traveling and many of our employees are working from home to aid in the effort of limiting the spread of COVID-19. Our ability to connect with customers, family and friends face-to-face has been affected by social distancing. Through all this, it remains critical for OFS to focus its efforts on helping our customers maintain and improve the global infrastructure.

Our work is considered to be a critical infrastructure industry by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, as noted in its March 19, 2020, Memorandum on Identification of Essential Critical Infrastructure Workers during COVID-19 Response (<https://www.cisa.gov/publication/guidance-essential-critical-infrastructure-workforce>).

The Memorandum states “If you work in a critical infrastructure industry, as defined by the Department of Homeland Security . . . you have a special responsibility to maintain your normal work schedule.” The OFS facilities in North America produce products critical to National Defense, Telecommunications, Aerospace, Medical procedures, Energy and Utilities.

OFS is mitigating supply chain risks wherever possible, using alternative sources and increasing stock of critical raw materials.

We realize COVID-19’s impact on our business is subject to change as this fluid situation evolves. We continue to monitor all available resources to ensure we have the most relevant information to operate our business given the current environment and intend to be in close communication with our customers worldwide.

Thank you for your continued support of our business.
